Any gaps that occur during assembly can be easily filled with plastic model filler. Because of the complexity of the model, you'll find you have to do a fair amount of trimming and sanding of pieces and filling of gaps as you go along.

To strengthen the construction of parts of the Baneblade you'll need to use small triangular brackets made from plastic card or cardboard - the diagram below shows you how to fit a strengthening bracket.

There are diagrams and photos of the completed model to show you how it all goes together - take a look at these as you read the instructions.

You'll need to have a little patience when building a Baneblade. Always leave time for parts to dry before moving on to the next section. This isn't a model you can build in half an hour like many kits. However, when you've finished it you should get a great sense of achievement and a splendid centerpiece for your Imperial army.

PART 1: TRACK UNITS MAKING THE PARTS

All parts are made from 0.03" thick plastic card or thin cardboard with the exception of the following:

The turret mount supports (BT18) are made from 0.08" thick plastic card or thick cardboard.

The tracks (BT22) are made from very thin plastic card or thin cardboard. Cut two strips 24mm wide to the desired length.

The axles (BT19 x 20) are made from 1" long pieces of 5/8" wide balsa wood doweling.

The wheels (BT21) are large Citadel round shields.

The heavy bolters (BT24) are cut from Citadel plastic bolters from either the vehicle or the miniature kits.

First cut out four outer track unit sides (BT1), then cut two of these up to make two each of the outer track unit panels (BT2-BT6). These parts should have their edges and corners rounded by sanding. Similarly cut out four track unit tops (BT8), then cut two up to make two each of the track unit top panels (BT9-BT13).

The heavy bolter ports (BT25) are small circles of thin card which can be cut out using a hole-punch.

CONSTRUCTION

Follow this sequence for both track units.

- 1) Glue the track unit panels (BT2, BT3, BT4, BT5 and BT6) to the outer side of the track unit (BT1).

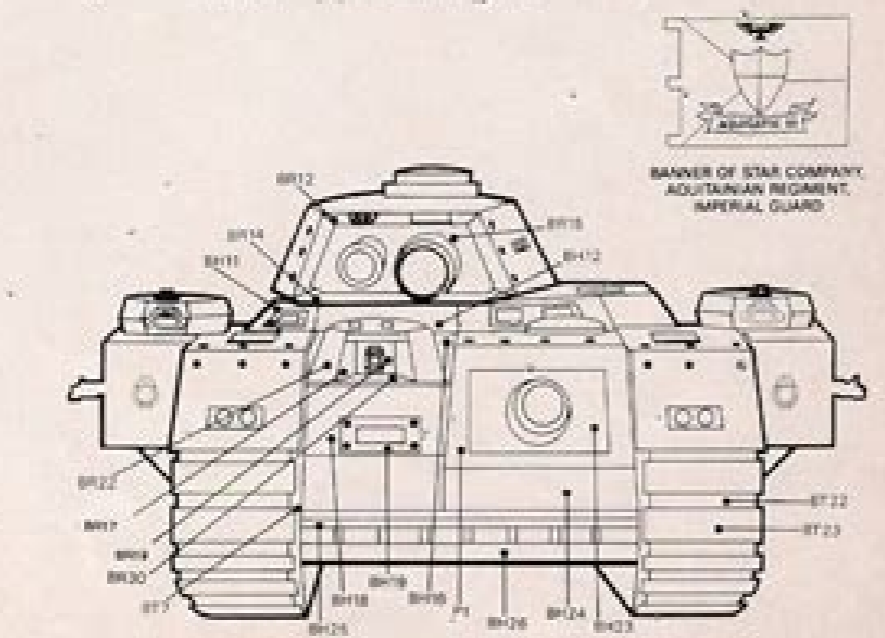

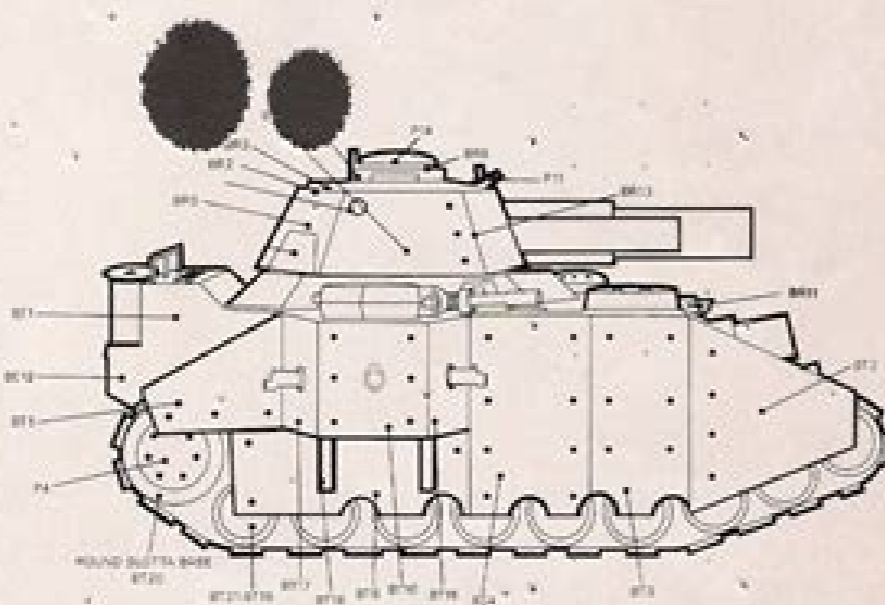

- 2) Glue the top panels (BT9, BT10, BT11, BT12 and BT13) to the track unit top (BT8).

- 3) Glue the outer side of the track unit (BT1) and the track unit top (BT7) to the inner side of the track unit (BT8).

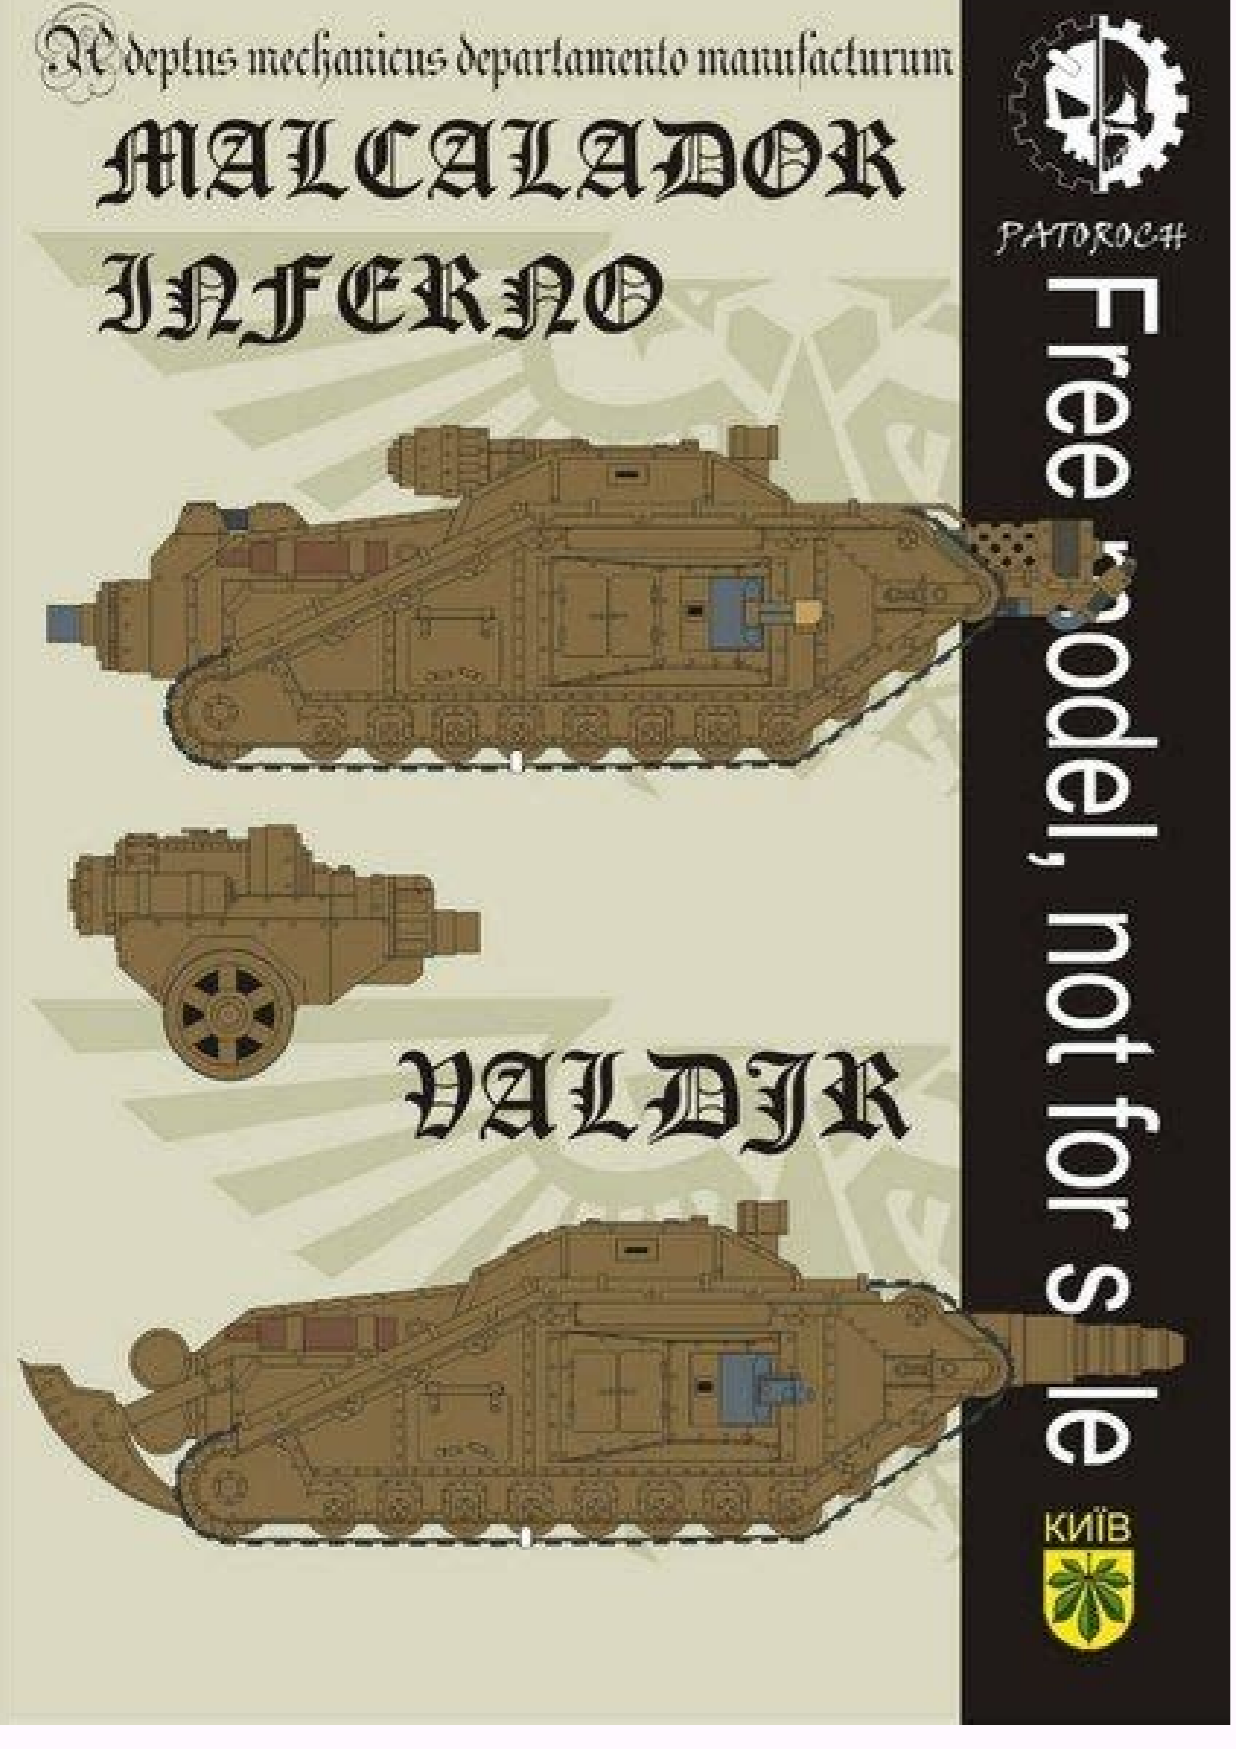

- 4) Glue the turret mount base, sides and support (BT14, BT15, BT16, BT17 and BT18) to the track unit.

- 5) Glue the wheels (BT21) to the axles (BT19). The first two axles on each unit should be capped by wheels at both ends because you can see them from the front. Therefore, the axles for these need to be slightly shorter.

- 6) Glue a round slota base (BT20) to each end of the rear axle to make the drive wheel - use the uncut type of slotabase.
